

What is Falun Gong?

Meditation exercises; Falun Gong (also called Falun Dafa) has slow moving meditation exercises that look similar to Tai Chi and Yoga, improving health and vitality, and harmonising mind and body.

Truthfulness, Kindness, Tolerance; Falun Gong has a spiritual philosophy based on Truthfulness, Kindness, and Tolerance, and encourages its practitioners to become more honest and considerate of others.

Practised worldwide; This ancient practice originally taught in private only, was made public in 1992 and has since become one of the most popular forms of qigong. Today it is practised around the world.

Without formal organisation, cost or membership
All Falun Gong classes run for free by volunteers. Exercise instructions and all books are freely available online at: FalunDafa.org

Is human life worth no more than its parts?

Ren Pengwu's throat and lower abdomen were removed and his family were not allowed to take photos of his body at the hospital. In a common practice to destroy evidence, police hastily cremated his body without his relatives' consent.

"Forced organ harvesting has been committed for years throughout China on a significant scale and that Falun Gong practitioners have been one - and probably the main - source of organ supply... and it continues till today.

Governments and any who interact in any substantial way with China should now recognise that they are interacting with a criminal state."

– Independent tribunal chaired by the King's* Counsel Sir Geoffrey Nice

ChinaTribunal.com

King Charles III

Please help by signing the G7+7 petition at:

FOHpetition.org

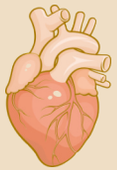

Your signature helps save lives

"The killing of [practitioners of the Falun Gong peaceful meditation] for the purpose of selling their organs for transplant is a violation of the fundamental right to life."
– European Parliament resolution on forced organ harvesting in China

Organs forcefully removed from living people and sold for profit

Desperate patients from across the world have been going to China to buy organs. A suitable match is found in days - a contrast to the usual years it takes in other countries. But how is this possible?

Innocent people are captured and blood tested by the Chinese communist regime to make a DNA database. When a patient comes to buy an organ, the database is checked to find a matching victim. While still alive, the victim's organs are forcefully removed and sold for up to €170,000 each.

Falun Gong practitioners are a main target, as they are considered to have healthy organs because they meditate, exercise and have a peaceful way of life.

"Across China, a gruesome trade in human organs is taking place on a mass scale. Like something out of a horror movie, livers, kidneys, hearts, lungs and corneas are being cut out from prisoners of conscience while they are still alive." – Deputy Chair of Human Rights Commission of British Conservative Party; Benedict Rogers

US Congress "condemns the practice of state-sanctioned forced organ harvesting in China." – House Resolution 343

Large-scale Falun Gong exercise sessions like the one to the right in Beijing were common in China, before the persecution began.

"In 1992, Falun Gong – a new Buddhist Tai Chi-like movement – began to sweep China. When I first visited Beijing in 1996, every open space was filled with people practising its slow exercises and meditation." – Edward McMillan-Scott, former European Parliament Vice President

"Falun Gong is a traditional Chinese Qigong practice, promoting self-improvement of one's physical, mental, emotional and spiritual well-being." – Rosa Lee Long, former Australian MP

Why the persecution?

Falun Gong practitioners follow the principles of Truthfulness, Kindness and Tolerance, are non-violent and do not retaliate. Why does the Chinese Communist Party persecute this peaceful, spiritual practice?

Destroying other ideologies

Since 1949 the Chinese Communist Party has used violence and terror to destroy the traditional beliefs and values that shaped China for thousands of years, such as Buddhism, Confucianism and Taoism; belief systems comparable to Falun Gong.

Power and control

As a dictatorship, the Chinese Communist Party fears groups it does not control. To maintain its grip on the country it creates an atmosphere of fear by attacking independent groups.

After a government survey showed 100 million people were practising Falun Gong in China – more than the Chinese Communist Party's membership – the Communist Party leaders feared their power would be threatened and banned Falun Gong.

According to UN reports Falun Gong is currently one of the largest groups persecuted in China.

